Objectives & Activities

Summary of the Objects of the Charity as set out in its Governing Document

Al Noor Charitable Society UK will complement and support the charitable work of Al Noor in India established by Mrs Salma Ansari by Trust Deed in December 2011, whose main object is to "educate minority illiterate and ladies. For that purpose to establish school, colleges."

Charity To further such of the Objects of Al Noor Charitable Society (The Indian Charity) as are exclusively charitable according to English Law as the Charity Trustees for the time being of the CIO shall from time to time in consultation with the India Charity determine.

The Indian Charity runs four schools under the Society Bapu, Chacha Nehru, Qila and Al Noor are located in the most impoverished slum areas of Aligarh and Delhi.

The ethos is "Educating, Empowering and Enabling children and future generations of forgotten children"

The literacy rates among these children were 0.2% in 2002, when the school started and their families could not afford even government schooling.

Coming from such poor conditions the children are weak and suffer from malnutrition through a lack of food, water, clothing and medication; they face life threatening issues. Al Noor in addition to education is providing probably their only main meal of the day, as well as clothing, shoes and medical treatment. Children in these schools are provided with free books and course material free uniforms (socks, shoes, dresses and shorts and shirts and woollen cardigans in winter), free stationery (pencils, pens, erasers) and even a free midday meal to encourage more and more children to come to school.

The children at the school come from such deprived and impoverished backgrounds that they have unfortunately had no exposure to any structured learning and have become used to simply spending their time roaming the slums.

Al Noor recognizes the impact of such hardships and the challenges this will bring as children start their long path of structured learning. Al Noor pedagogic philosophy is not simply about the 8th standard, over the last five years about 20% of the children have progressed to higher education in public schools across Aligarh. Our teachers work especially hard so that these students can receive scholarships to these schools.

These schools are but a small part of a much larger vision. A vision that encompasses in it the freedom of choice for these and other millions of children who dream and yearn towards a better ,more wholesome life but have no tools or skills to make them, valuable , precious and contributing members of society .

We are proud to announce that just this year we opened the new building through the great support of friends around the world. We have a building to house orphans and by the end of the year we will be teaching and supporting over 4000 impoverished children. We hope to bring positive change not just to the children but for generations to come through the educating of these children.

We believe that education should not be denied to anyone. Under the Al Noor Schools we allow children to enter the school at any age. This enables children who have been deprived of an education in their early years/who dropped out but want to go back/ children of migrant labour, to join school and get an education.

To be a part of mainstream education these children need to possess the skill of an English education. The schools being run under the Foundation provides an English medium education. This enables the children to gain tremendously in terms of in terms of confidence and communication and further ability to learn.

Financial Review

Brief Statement of the Charity's Policy on Reserves

In the Trustees' view, the reserves should provide the charity with adequate financial stability and the means for it to meet its charitable objectives for the foreseeable future. The trustees propose to maintain the charity's reserves at a level which is at least equivalent to six months operational expenditure and have done so having regards to its manner of operation of likely funding streams. The trustees review the amount of reserves that are required to ensure that they are adequate to fulfil the charity's continuing obligations on a quarterly basis at their finance meeting.
