Letter from the Chair

As might be expected, the 2020/21 financial year was the most uniquely challenging and testing year for Young Active Minds, especially with this being our first year of activity. When the pandemic hit in 2020, we had no idea what this would do to our model which, from the very beginning, was solely dependent on face-to-face delivery in academic settings across England and Wales. The first of the rolling school closures started within a week of the charity formation.

We did have one gleam of hope throughout this gloomy first year. We were recognised in the Prime Minister's Points of Light Awards.

Due to the uncertainty of the school closures, we looked for other ways to continue in-person workshops in an outdoor setting.

For the future, we now firmly have our eyes on pivoting to the provision of a hybrid blended programme for face-to-face learning, with an online programme.

The ties that we developed with academic settings early on, have stayed strong and remained sympathetic with a view to us progressing face-to-face delivery post-COVID restrictions.

Who we are, what we do and why we do it

Young Active Minds was formed to advance education & mental health awareness throughout all community groups by the promotion of enhanced learning methods and the provision of services and specialist memory training to support the development of all individuals' capabilities, competencies, understanding and skills through school, leisure time and community activities, irrespective of financial background, current attainment levels or cultural diversity.

Children and young people can use these techniques to both further their academic attainment and also in numerous everyday applications. We are open to provide them to all demographics within society and each different age group will have their own benefit of using the different memory techniques.

Our learning methods are available to all, irrespective of attainment levels, cultural or financial background or learning difficulties.

This aims to bring together and foster understanding amongst young people from diverse communities and encourage the goodwill and involvement of the wider community.

By offering training in these new memory techniques to disadvantaged & challenged children, not in mainstream education, it provides opportunities they wouldn't previously have had, supporting the advancement of education, which is recognised as a charitable purpose having public benefit.

We launched the charity during the 75th anniversary of the creation of the United Nations and directly helped to align the charity to support the UN Sustainable Development Goals, specifically SDG4: 'to ensure equitable and quality education for all.'

Our year in review

The charity's first year aim was to provide training in enhanced memory techniques in schools, colleges and other academic settings through interactive workshops.

We also aimed to put on interactive sessions in nursing homes to show that memory techniques are still as effective with age.

However, due to the COVID-19 global pandemic, we have not been permitted, by law, to attend schools, with lessons being held remotely for months and nursing homes for the elderly have also not legally permitted attendance. We have therefore been unable to operate during this period through reasons of health and statutory/legal compliance.

We have unfortunately been unable to carry out our objectives due to COVID-19 but we have, however, now looked into the provision of online workshops and held discussions with various academic settings regarding the future provision through in-person (post-COVID) and online workshops.

It hasn't been all doom and gloom for our first year. We received several strong pieces of national media coverage, in ink, television and radio and were recognised in the Prime Minister's Points of Light Award.

Challenges and lessons learned

We have been faced with many unpleasant and unforeseen challenges in this first year of our charity formation.

Not being able to attend academic settings in person due to both legal compliance and the increased risk of exposure and transmission of COVID-19.

We have maintained contacts with several academic settings with a view to attending in-person for face-to-face workshops as soon as the COVID-19 pandemic ends.

We are also looking into other ways to mitigate against lack of in-person provision. We have been reviewing online education delivery platforms.

One of our ambassadors, Montgomery Lord, is working with the trustees to develop an in-house platform to facilitate this, rather than an off-the-shelf package. This will enable us to grow the platform as the charity progresses and increases the footprint.

We are also looking at bringing onboard a trustee who has experience with making charity grant applications.

Strategy for the year ahead

Developing promotional material

We will be developing a range of promotional materials to explain the benefits of participation in our charity workshops.

Forging closer relationships

We will be looking at forging closer relationships with academic settings.

Taking a blended learning approach

We will also be developing our programmes to take on a blended-learning approach to accommodate such exigencies as has occurred this year with the COVID-19 pandemic.

Diversifying training programmes

In 2021-22 we shall be looking at diversifying our pre-existing memory training programmes to accommodate varying levels with different target audiences. This will include separate programmes for primary and secondary schools, higher education and for those outside mainstream education.

Governance and accountability

Charity object

To advance the education of the public, and in particular, but not exclusively, children and young people, in memory techniques and memory skills in order to develop their individual capabilities and capacities through the provision of workshops and other similar sessions.

Public benefit

All of our activities are undertaken to further our purposes for the public benefit, and are overseen by the Trustees to ensure that this is the case.

Structure & Governance

Young Active Minds is constituted as a Charitable Incorporated Organisation, whose only voting members are its charity trustees. The charity had a board of four trustees.

Trustees are recruited through existing networks of professionals, mentors and partner organisations. Trustee roles are outlined following an audit of the existing skills and resource on the board, and an examination of the key needs of the charity.

Apart from the first charity trustees, every trustee is appointed for a term of three years by a resolution passed at a properly convened meeting of the charity trustees. In selecting individuals for appointment as charity trustees, the charity trustees must have regard to the skills, knowledge and experience needed for the effective administration of the CIO.

Induction and training

All trustees receive training in their role as a trustee and safeguarding. Every trustee receives an induction pack, is invited to mentor and expected to attend at least one mentoring event within their first six months of service to better understand the work of the charity and the impact that it has on the people that we support.

Decision-making and governance

Charity trustees make all spending decisions for the charity. They also agree budgets for each year, including the cost of expanding our programmes into a new region and any associated developmental projects to accommodate this. Trustees make decisions about partnerships or associations that could be deemed a risk to reputation or quality of delivery of the programme, as identified by the board. Trustees handle the running, recruitment and staff management, growth planning and spending decisions that are part of the core business of the charity.

Financial Review: financial activity and financial position

In the financial 2020 to 2021, Young Active Minds had an income of £NIL and an expenditure of £NIL.

There are no funds held by the charity that are materially in deficit.

During the financial period for this annual return, we did not receive any income from grants from central government or local authorities.

We did not have any requirement to make application to the government's furlough programme.

Policies on reserves

Young Active Mind's policy on reserves is to aim to achieve 6 months' total reserves (total reserves being unrestricted plus restricted reserves); and to have an aim to achieve a minimum of 3 months' unrestricted reserves. This is to ensure that the charity is able to carry out its work should there be a break in funding. The charity is taking measures to put future funding in place and acknowledges that, in the current financial climate in particular, it is prudent to aim to have 3 months' running costs as a minimum for reserves.

Fundraising compliance

We aim to undertake a range of fundraising activities in support of our charitable aims. Our approach includes:

- partnerships with corporate supporters;
- securing grants from trusts and foundations;
- donations from individuals;
- sponsorship raised by individuals for memory challenge events,
- and sponsorship related to other events.

All of our fundraising activity is managed in-house. We did not engage the services of any professional fundraising agencies to undertake direct response fundraising solicitation or cultivation either by phone or face-to-face, during the year. We are committed to observing the highest possible standards in fundraising. We are required to comply with all relevant law and regulations.

Trustees' Responsibilities

The charity's trustees are responsible for the preparation of the accounts in accordance with the terms of the Charities Act 2011 and the Charities (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008. Notwithstanding the explicit requirement in the extant statutory regulations, the Charities (Accounts and Reports) Regulations 2008, to prepare the financial statements in accordance with the SORP 2005, in view of the fact that the SORP 2005 has been withdrawn, the Trustees determined to interpret this responsibility as requiring them to follow current best practice and prepare the accounts according to the FRS 102 SORP (Statement of Recommended Practice for Accounting and Reporting by Charities) 2015, (as amended by the Bulletin issued in February 2016), (The SORP).

The law requires that the trustees must not approve the accounts unless they are satisfied that they give a true and fair view of the state of affairs of the charity and of the surplus or deficit of the charity for the year.

The Trustees are also responsible for maintaining adequate accounting records which disclose with reasonable accuracy at any time the financial position of the charity and which are sufficient to show and explain the charity's transactions and enable them to ensure that the financial statements comply with regulations made under the Charities Act 2011. They are also responsible for safeguarding the assets of the charity and hence for taking reasonable steps for the prevention and detection of fraud and other irregularities.

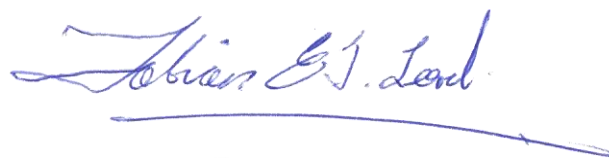

The Trustees have referred to the guidance contained in the Charity Commission's general guidance on public benefit when reviewing the charity's aims and objectives and in planning its future activities. In particular, the Trustees consider how planned activities will contribute to the aims and objectives that have been set.

The Trustees are also responsible for the contents of the Trustees' report and ensuring that there are no material inconsistencies with the figures disclosed in the financial statements.

This report was approved by the Board of Trustees on 18th January, 2022 and signed on their behalf by Fabian Lord, Chair of Trustees.

The background of the slide features a close-up, slightly blurred image of a financial document. On the left, a portion of a black calculator is visible, showing keys for division, multiplication, and a percentage sign. A silver pen lies diagonally across the center-right of the image. The document itself has a grid pattern and contains numerical data. In the bottom right corner, a series of numbers (31, 34, 37, 40, 43, 46, 49, 52, 55) is visible, with a green checkmark placed next to the number 43. The word "Financials" is centered in a bold blue font. Decorative elements include a purple wavy shape in the bottom left corner containing a green leaf illustration, a red wavy shape in the top right corner containing a pink zigzag line, and three blue plus signs in the upper left quadrant.
