NAMAL COLLEGE - Charity No: 1144897
Cambridge House, 66 Little Horton Lane, Bradford, BD5 0HU

Structure, Governance & Management

The charity is governed by a trust deed dated 1 December 2011 and registered at the Charity Commission on 2 December 2011.

It is a charitable trust, managed by the following Trustees appointed by Imran Khan, an ex-cricketer and former captain of the Pakistan World Cup winning team in 1992:

- |                        |                                   |
|------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1. Mr Imran Khan Niazi | Appointed 01/12/2011 & Continuing |
| 2. Mr Taher Nawaz      | Appointed 01/12/2011 & Continuing |
| 3. Mr Arshad Javed     | Appointed 11/05/2018 & Continuing |

Imran has been involved in charitable and social welfare activities since 1989 which include the setting up and running of a state of the art Shaukat Khanum Cancer Hospital which is named after his mother. The hospital took the best of four years to build and equip and started operations in December 1994 and since then it has provided free treatment to those unable to afford treatment and provides such assistance to up to 75% of the patients. Imran has, since the opening of the hospital, been involved in activities such as education (Namal College) and he was involved in fund raising and relief efforts (IKRF), following the devastating earthquake which affected the northern areas of Pakistan in 2005 and which required considerable assistance to those affected. More recently, a second cancer hospital has been opened in Peshawar and a third is under construction in Karachi.

Objectives & Main Activities

The objective of the charity is the

- Advancement of education, training, and skills in Pakistan for the benefit of the public in providing support to Namal College as a high quality educational establishment assistance to students attending the college, with a focus on those who are socially or economically disadvantaged.
- Prevention of relief of poverty in Pakistan by assisting in the provision of educational services and support for young people in Pakistan who are socially or economically disadvantaged.

Imran Khan has a track record for delivering services and a reputation for honesty and integrity. Donors like these qualities and find it easier to make donations to people who possess qualities such as these and they trust Imran as a result.

Namal College was set up in the Mianwali District of Pakistan where Imran Khan, the founder of Namal, was a Member of Parliament. There are few institutions of higher education available in the area and where these exist the fees would not within the means of students to be able to afford their studies. It is also an area where there is a crying need for formal education instead of allowing the informal venues, such as madrassas, to develop which may not have the facilities to cope with modern education.

Imran Khan was the chancellor of University of Bradford (UoB) from 2005 to 2014 inclusive and during this period of association the idea of co-operating with the UoB arose and this led to Namal teaming up with the UoB. The courses for Namal College had been set up in collaboration with the UoB and the degrees were eventually awarded by the UoB. Namal paid an annual fee per student for this collaboration and the Namal College charity set up in the UK has utilised all its funds in the last financial year 2016 towards the payment of fees to the UoB which amounted to £45,000. No payments were made this financial year and a fund-raising event held at a cost of £25,000 raised substantial donations needed to send to Namal College and to pay fees to the UoB, which were made in the next financial year.

Namal College is still in its development phase in that it started off on a site of some five acres and now has site consisting of one thousand acres, which includes a frontage and part of a beautiful lake. At present, there are five schools of engineering and management science with other facilities opening over the next few year, along with halls of residence.

As the facilities increase, so will the number of students and the charity hopes to be able to make its contribution, with donations mainly coming from UK residents of Pakistani origin
